A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Another brief remark.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Another brief remark.

The third item is a little longer than the others so that it needs a second line in a narrow column.

Fourth.

The third item is a little longer than the others so that it needs a second line in a narrow column.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Another brief remark.

A fifth paragraph that is about as long as the third one, give or take a few words in the middle.

Fourth.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Typesetting depends on small decisions repeated thousands of times: where a line ends, how much space follows a paragraph, and which words travel together across a page boundary. A faithful reproduction must make exactly the same decisions, because one different break early in a document moves every line that follows it onto a different page.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Another brief remark.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

Another brief remark.

The third item is a little longer than the others so that it needs a second line in a narrow column.

Fourth.

A fifth paragraph that is about as long as the third one, give or take a few words in the middle.

Another brief remark.

A short note of two lines, no more than that.

The third item is a little longer than the others so that it needs a second line in a narrow column.

A fifth paragraph that is about as long as the third one, give or take a few words in the middle.

Fourth.