Frame 1 Hi Children carry baskets of bread while the bakers stack trays of rolls beside the fountain and count the morning takings aloud.

Frame 2 Hi A narrow bridge crosses the stream behind the chapel, and travellers pause there to watch the water turn the slow wooden wheel.

Frame 3 Hi By noon the square fills with voices, and the clock above the arcade strikes the hour a little later than the church bell does.

Frame 4 Hi The harbour road climbs past the old salt warehouses before it bends toward the quiet market square where the stalls open early.

Frame 5 Hi Children carry baskets of bread while the bakers stack trays of rolls beside the fountain and count the morning takings aloud.

Hi A Frame 6 narrow bridge crosses the stream behind the chapel, and travellers pause there to watch the water turn the slow wooden wheel.

Hi Frame 7 By noon the square fills with voices, and the clock above the arcade strikes the hour a little later than the church bell does.

Hi Frame 8 The harbour road climbs past the old salt warehouses before it bends toward the quiet market square where the stalls open early.

Frame 9 Harbour Children carry baskets of bread while the bakers stack trays of rolls beside the fountain and count the morning takings aloud.

Frame 10 Harbour A narrow bridge crosses the stream behind the chapel, and travellers pause there to watch the water turn the slow wooden wheel.

Harbour Frame 11 By noon the square fills with voices, and the clock above the arcade strikes the hour a little later than the church bell does.

Harbour Frame 12 The harbour road climbs past the old salt warehouses before it bends toward the quiet market square where the stalls open early.

Harbour Frame 13 Children carry baskets of bread while the bakers stack trays of rolls beside the fountain and count the morning takings aloud.

Harbour A Frame 14 narrow bridge crosses the stream behind the chapel, and travellers pause there to watch the water turn the slow wooden wheel.

Harbour By Frame 15 noon the square fills with voices, and the clock above the arcade strikes the hour a little later than the church bell does.

Harbour The Frame 16 harbour road climbs past the old salt warehouses before it bends toward the quiet market square where the stalls open early.